

THE WEEKDAY STUDY

If you could only watch Bitcoin one day a week, which day should it be? I checked every day since 2012, 5,387 of them.

The size of every day's move, the biggest move of each week, the 100 biggest days, how the weekend changed after the ETFs, and which days lean green or red in bull and bear years.

faded bar = 2012 to 2019

solid bar = since the ETFs (Jan 2024)

average size of Bitcoin's daily move, up or down, by day of the week. UTC days, Bitstamp.

Educational, not financial advice. Days are UTC days on Bitstamp. A move is the close-to-close change, up or down, so a -3% day and a +3% day are both a 3% move.

1 Jan 2012 to 30 Sep 2026. Typical = median. Range = the high minus the low, as a % of the open.

The five weekdays move 2.6% to 2.9% on an average day. Sunday moves 2.1% and Saturday 1.8%. On a typical day, the median, Saturday moves about 1%, against 1.5% to 1.7% on weekdays. The weekend chaos most people expect does not show up in fourteen years of data.

THE WEEKEND KEEPS GETTING QUIETER

DAY	2012 TO 2019	2020 TO 2023	SINCE THE ETFS
Monday	2.9%	3.0%	2.1%
Tuesday	2.9%	2.4%	2.0%
Wednesday	3.1%	2.7%	2.0%
Thursday	3.3%	2.8%	1.9%
Friday	2.8%	2.5%	2.0%
Saturday	2.4%	1.4%	0.8%
Sunday	2.4%	1.8%	1.5%

Average daily move. The ETF era starts 11 January 2024, the first trading day of the US spot Bitcoin ETFs.

In 2015 and 2016 the weekend moved about 95% as much as a weekday. Since 2023 it has moved about half as much. Since the ETFs, Saturday averages 0.8% while every weekday averages about 2%. The weekend was the quietest part of the week in every era, and the gap has widened as more of Bitcoin's trading moved to weekday markets.

THE BIG DAYS

WHERE THE BIG MOVES LAND

DAY	BIGGEST MOVE OF THE WEEK, 769 WEEKS	OF THE 100 BIGGEST DAYS
Monday	136/769 (18%)	18
Tuesday	123/769 (16%)	16
Wednesday	136/769 (18%)	19
Thursday	139/769 (18%)	23
Friday	125/769 (16%)	10
Saturday	46/769 (6%)	7
Sunday	64/769 (8%)	7

Full Monday-to-Sunday weeks only. If every day were equal, each would have the biggest move 14% of the time.

Thursday had the biggest move of its week more often than any other day, and 23 of the 100 biggest days on record. The whole weekend had 14 of the 100. Saturday had the week's biggest move only 6% of the time.

Sunday	281/523 (54%)	115/247 (47%)	16/39 (41%)

Bear years use the same calendar list as every other study on this page: 2014, 2015, 2018, 2022 and 2026. 2026 runs to 30 September.

Across all years Monday was green 54% of the time and Thursday 49%, the best and worst days. In bear years Monday to Thursday were all green less than half the time, while Saturday was green 54%, the most of any day. In 2026 Monday has been green 24 of 39 times and Tuesday red 26 of 39.

READ THIS BEFORE TRADING IT

These direction edges are small. 49% to 54% is close to a coin flip, and a few strong weeks can move them. The size of the moves, the first three pages, is the solid finding. The direction table is context, not a trading signal.

THE METHOD

HOW IT WAS MEASURED

Days. Bitstamp BTC/USD daily bars, which run on UTC days. In US Eastern time, Saturday's bar runs from 8pm Friday to 8pm Saturday, and Sunday's bar includes the CME futures open at 6pm Eastern on Sunday.

Moves. The size of a day is the absolute close-to-close change. The range is the high minus the low. The biggest move of the week is the day with the largest absolute change in a full Monday-to-Sunday week.

The limits. 5,387 days is a large sample for the size of moves, but the bull and bear split and 2026 alone are much smaller, and the bear year list is a calendar label. Early years ran on a thinner market. None of this says which way the next day will go.
